EDUC-Z 705 DRAMA ACROSS K-12 CURRICULUM (3 CR)
14657 6W1 ARR ARR ARR Weltekg G
This course explores a wide range of connections between drama and critical pedagogy across the curriculum. Focus is given to current theories, practice strategies and research that articulate this connection. Students will explore the ways in which Drama as Critical Pedagogy may function within multiliterate and multimodal settings as well as within science, math, counseling, early childhood etc. Our engagements include participatory drama sessions, theoretical discussions and lesson construction and execution. Areas covered include: process drama, drama for social justice and equity, drama across the curriculum and alternate spaces, as well as evaluation and assessment all framed through the connection across the curriculum.

The Federal Policymaking & Special Education short course is intended to provide graduate students with an introduction to becoming effective leaders in education through participation in the public policy making process. In this course, participants will be provided the opportunity to learn and practice the skills needed to be an effective advocate for K-12 students with disabilities and preservice teachers. Public policy impacts the field of education immensely, and graduate students must be prepared to be effective advocates. Participants in the process by utilizing their research and practical experience to advocate on behalf of students with disabilities, their families, and preservice teachers. Through meetings with federal level policymakers, self-advocates, and national organization members, the participants will be engaged in dialogue about key education issues and be provided with the opportunity to find their place within the policymaking process.
