Though a faculty member will be engaged as your instructor, online courses require students to be especially conscientious and responsible about completing assignments and staying on track.

Online courses are not easier than residential courses and require just as much time and effort from students.

Students must have a computer with a working microphone and webcam. A private location and reliable internet connection with a broadband speed of at least 5mbps is required for quizzes and exams.

Above class meets 100% Online through Asynchronous instruction. For more information visit https://fall2020.iu.edu/learning-modes/

In this course, students will begin to explore the personal, institutional, political, and cultural forces that impact the lived experience of being a professional teacher. Possible key questions for reflection include: How does self-knowledge help teachers positively shape their professional lives? How does school culture shape the day-to-day life of teachers and how do you identify a school culture that is right for you? How does the current emphasis on standardized testing impact the life of a teacher and how can teachers positively respond to this? What does it mean to be a role model and what are the challenges and opportunities presented by this social role? What does community mean and how are teachers participating in and facilitating positive community? Exploration of these questions will occur through student centered, hands-on, and interactive classroom activities.

EDUC-X 152: Mapping Your Future: How to Make the Most Out of Your College Experience is an eight-week, two credit, graded seminar course designed for students to investigate the purposes of an undergraduate education at IU Bloomington and to expose them to the array of skills, tools, and opportunities that academic advisors, career coaches, and the university have to offer. The assignments and activities in the course include a mixture of readings, class discussions, journaling, out-of-class-activities, and a culminating semester project. By the end of the course, students should have a better understanding of themselves, their academic and career interests, and a plan to maximize their opportunities as an IU Bloomington student.
