This course is designed to be blended/flipped format relative to a traditional class. Students are expected to invest time outside of class meeting to complete all of the recorded lecture videos, lecture quizzes and assignments BEFORE class. During the weekly meeting students will practice application of content through challenging problems. In-class work will be collaborative and inquiry based, involving interpretation of experimental data to deepen understanding of material. In addition, there is a strong emphasis on learning how to learn. Above class meets online in-person during meeting time indicated above. Additional class activities delivered asynchronously online.

 #BlackLivesMatter and how we talk about this issue matters, too. Abusive language in social media is a serious issue, and because so many posts are made every day, we cannot remove abusive posts by hand their removal must be automated. How does automatic detection work? We will discuss what abusive language is and consider how it differs based on the group it addresses (e.g. sexism, racism). Then we ll learn about automatic approaches to language analysis (i.e. what is behind Siri or Alexa), and how they are used for finding abusive language automatically. We will learn just a bit of programming. By the end of the course, you will develop, experiment with, and assess your own method for automatic detection of abusive posts. Basic familiarity with computers is assumed, but no experience with programming, machine learning, or computational linguistics is required.

In this course, students will begin to explore the personal, institutional, political, and cultural forces that impact the lived experience of being a professional teacher. Possible key questions for reflection include: How does self-knowledge help teachers positively shape their professional lives? How does school culture shape the day-to-day life of teachers and how do you identify a school culture that is right for you? How does the current emphasis on standardized testing impact the life of a teacher and how can teachers positively respond to this? What does it mean to be a role model and what are the challenges and opportunities presented by this social role? What does community mean and how are teachers participants in and facilitators of positive community? Exploration of these questions will occur through student centered, hands-on, and interactive classroom activities

EDUC-X 152: Mapping Your Future: How to Make the Most Out of Your College Experience is an eight-week, two credit, graded seminar course designed for students to investigate the purposes of an undergraduate education at IU Bloomington and to expose them to the array of skills, tools, and opportunities that academic advisors, career coaches, and the university have to offer. The assignments and activities in the course include a mixture of readings, class discussions, journaling, out-of-class-activities, and a culminating semester project. By the end of the course, students should have a better understanding of themselves, their academic and career interests, and a plan to maximize their opportunities as an IU Bloomington student

Above class meets In Person. For more information visit <https://covid.iu.edu/learning-modes/index.html>

VT: YOU@IU
	17504	10:00 A-10:55 A	TR	BH 237	Sterling A	19	1	0
		Open to all students Will you be navigating IU's beautiful campus pretty much for the first time this Fall? Wondering how help resources will work now - and how to feel more comfortable using them? Seeking to expand your college experience beyond Canvas and Zoom meetings? Building those personal connections is the central focus of this course! We'll take trips and invite guests to discover all the amazing opportunities here, help you figure out fun and useful ways to get involved in campus life, and share our experiences with each other in a warm, supportive environment. Best of all, there will be many opportunities for multicultural dialogue and forming friendships in a small group. It's all the stuff you want to know about IU, inside and outside of the classroom, except with this class you get credit for it! Questions? Please email Anthony Guest-Scott - aguestsc@iu.edu . Above class meets for the thirteen week session Above class meets In Person.
